The object of the call, as stated in the port of Charleston was closely blockaded and no commerce by water was had with the outside world save very occasionally by a blockade runner, and then only to bring in arms and general munitions of war, the city was less than ever exposed to the vellow fever's being introduced by passengers or merchan-dise. But in 1863 a small steamer which had gotten out of the harbor in the night returned in about a month or six weeks and successfull ran the blockade into port with a cargo of war material for the confederate government Sailing from a South American port, where, at the time, the yellow fever was by no means widely prevailing, but had rather broken out only a few weeks before, on her arrival in Charleston she was quarantined as far away as the Ashley river at the back of the city would allow. There was no case of yellow fever on the steamer, as I remember, and no indication of danger about her, as far as could be discovered by inspection of her officers and crew. One of the officers, however, a few days after the arrival of this steamer in the harbor had sent up to the city for a lady friend there, for whom

REMOVAL OF THE GARBAGE.

An Old Law in Webb's Digest That Bears on the Subject. So much has been said recently about the garbage question and so many regulations have been made that the police find it difficult to Great Britain and this is the first American tour.

The play is an interesting melodrama in four acts. The plot is one which holds an audience's while the regulations of the Commission keep up with the many moves and can hardly tell exactly what to do and when to take action interest from beginning to end, consisting, as it does, of a succession of stirring and realistic scenes and incidents. The dialogue of the drama is of an intensely exciting kind. The author adheres as closely as possible to the story, and consequently a brilliant production is the result. Mr. Dallas takes the leading role, Gervais Raynor, alias Tim Woodfall, and is supported by a very strong company. Matinees will be given as usual on Wednesday and Saturday.

While the regulations of the Commissionera make provisions for the deposits and removal of garbage there is an old law of the corporation of Washington reported in Webb's Digest which, it is thought, has never been repealed. It is an act of August 16, 1862, entitled "Offal and Slops."

Under this act "it shall be the duty of each and every person occupying a dwelling or other building in the city of Washington to keep one and every person occupying a dwelling or other building in the city of Washington to keep one or more slop tube or vessels for the reception of all kitchen or other offsl of the premises, and each and every person who shall throw any solid or fluid offsl into any street or alley or gutter, or upon the premises of another, shall be subject to the penalty of $5 for each and every offense.

"The commissioners of improvements in their respective wards shall employ carts or vessels properly constructed for removing the fluid or solid offal from the dwellings or places of business in their respective wards daily from the first day of May to the first day of D ber, and three times a week from the first day of December to the first day of May, and re-move therefrom all solid and fluid offal which may be collected on the respective premises.

"The said offal, so collected as aforesaid, shall be put and kept by the occupant of the dwelling or other building in such places on or about the premises as may be designated by the ward commissioner in order to facilitate its speedy removal; and any and every person offending against the provisions of this section in failing or refusing to comply with the requirements or refusing to comply with the requirement and directions of said commissioner shall be subject to a penalty of not less than $1 nor more than $5 for each offense.

"Upon the conviction of any person or per-sons for the violation of any provisions of this act and the failure of such persons to pay immediately the fine or penalty recovered against him, her or them, or to secure the payment of the same, such person or persons shall be com-mitted to the workhouse until such fine and penalty and costs thereon be paid; but no such prisonment shall be for a period longer than thirty days for any one offense.

BAND ON RIVER QUEEN. BOUND-TRIP FARE, 25 CENTS TOMORROW AT MARSHALL HALL. TWO FAST STEAMERS-TWO FINE BANDS!

The knightly lances are at rest on the green lawns f Marshall Hall today, preparatory to the annual curnament on WEDNESDAY, September 7. Mc-libben's Memoirs of Marshall Hall relate that the Indians of the green lawns were especially athletic and fond of all manner of tests of endurance and feats of skill. The Grand Tournament of the Knights of Maryland and Virginia, which occurs on the Green Lawns of Marshall Hall on WEDNESDAY NEXT, September 7, will be one of the most interesting contests that ever took place on the Green Lawns. The Ball at night, in the new pavilion, will be immense.
